

NEW FRENCH ATTACK THREATENS NOYON

HUN FORCES ARE BEING OUTFLANKED

FALL OF BIG GERMAN BASE IMMINENT—FRENCH TROOPS HAVE REACHED POINT ONLY 2-4 MILES FROM NOYON.

25 KILOMETER FRONT

Line Occupied By General Mangin's Army At Two O'Clock This Afternoon Extended From Campigny To The Aisne River.

Paris, Aug. 21.—The new French attack by General Mangin on a 25-kilometer front threatened, according to the latest report, the fall of Noyon, which slowly is being outflanked.

Long Line
The line occupied by General Mangin's army at two o'clock this afternoon ran from Campigny to Fontaine and then to LaPommeraye, Mont-St. Aubin, LaFour farm and several other points and reaches the Aisne at Courtill.

Strong Pressure
French troops have reached points occupied from the village of Fontaine, two and four-tenths miles from Noyon, according to the latest report. The latest dispatches to newspapers indicate that the allies pressure against the Germans is increasing and that the village of Camelin has been reached.

Continuing to Advance
Paris.—French troops continued their advance along the whole front between the Oise and the Aisne this morning. Carpiquet and Ours have been captured by the French, according to the official statement issued at the war office today. After sharp fighting ground has been taken west of Lassigny by the French, the statement says.

Will Crack System—French progress on the vital sector between the Oise and Soissons bids fair to bring about a cracking of the German position. Marshal Foch has connected up his Marne and Picardy successes with a new triumph which appears to be a greater triumph than either of the others.

Advancing Rapidly—In the new major operation between the Aisne and the Oise the French have gained the heights and are advancing rapidly toward the Oise and the supply line connecting Laon and other bases with the Noyon pocket. In two days of local operations and one given by a concerted attack, General Mangin has advanced more than two and one-half miles on a front of more than fifteen miles. The Oise and the railway line parallel to it are the main lines of defense and the French apparently hold all the important high ground which has barred the way to Noyon and the line of the Oise.

Pushing Advance—If Marshal Foch can push the advance to the north of the Oise it would appear to be inevitable that the German position in Picardy, probably to the old Hindenburg line, and withdraw from the Vesle at least to the Chemin des Dames. With the French north of the Oise both the German positions are outflanked. Apparently the Germans realize the possibilities of the new allied operations, as they are resisting most stubbornly.

Preparations for Attack—Reports that it anticipated a French blow north of the Aisne and the Germans are reported to have prepared for a possible attack. The German position, however, surprised them and gained on Tuesday a half score of villages and captured eight thousand prisoners, bringing their total for the three days to ten thousand. The German war office says the French attack broke down.

Take Villages—East of the line on the left of the attack the French have taken the villages of the Ourscamp forest and have taken Carpiquet. The line then swings northeast and the French are reported unofficially to have captured the village of Fontaine, a north of the Oise, which would be a serious threat to the enemy position north of the Vesle. The French and the Germans continue their pressure along the Vesle, but the heavy fighting has not yet spread to the east of Soissons. As in the fighting west of the Oise the Germans are depending upon machine guns for the major part of their defense. Apparently the enemy has taken his cannon to the north of the Oise.

Prisoners Taken—Between the Somme and Oise rivers the fighting has died down somewhat. The French, however, have completed the capture of Bauruignes and can now debauch over the low lying ground east of the village in a movement to outflank both Roye and Lassigny. In Monday's operation west of the Oise, General Humbert took five hundred prisoners.

Local Thrusts—In the north the British are striking the enemy in local thrusts astride the Scarpe and the Lys. East of Arras the British have gained ground north of the Scarpe while the German effort to outflank the British in a five-mile front on the Merville sector of the Lys salient Field Marshal Haig has pushed further eastward. The village of Pernoitte, which marks an advance of four miles from the old apex of the salient, is in the hands of the British.

Keeping Huns Busy—Marshal Foch is keeping the Germans busy on the entire front southeast of Ypres to Soissons, but the heaviest fighting is continued. To the south-

WAR SUMMARY

General Mangin attacked at 7:10 this morning on a ten mile front and advanced to a maximum depth of two miles. His capture included Vassens wood as well as the village. The Germans resisted desperately in this sector.

The French are now about 2 miles from Noyon. The battle line now runs from Bellefontaine to Hill 153, and from there to a mile north of Bellefontaine, La Croix, La Croix, Vassens wood, then a mile north of Vassens village to Farret farm, then to the north of Morsain, midway between Villers-Dorosse, and thence to the plateau north of Oisy and to Courtill.

The entire German line north of Soissons may be turned now, it is believed, by military experts. General Humbert's troops yesterday advanced a mile west of the slope between Fresnes and the Oise river, reaching Thiescourt, which lies southeast of Lassigny.

ern end of the line the allied thrusts at various points from the Oise to the Lys tend to keep the Germans in a "jump" and in a dilemma as to the most advantageous place for their reserves. The allied activity concerns military observers in the belief that the advantage of the initiative in further action. Except in the West where American troops repulsed a German raid, there has been no active fighting.

Aviators Active—American naval aviators have carried out the first American aerial offensive against German submarine bases in Belgium. German submarines were bombed successfully on August 15.

Enemy Military Leaders Alarmed Over Prospects of Revolt in Germany

British Headquarters in France, Aug. 21.—German military leaders over the prospect of a revolution in Germany. General Ludendorff, in a captured secret order, has taken steps to employ the assistance of his commanding officers and various units of the German army in a revolt.

The order, which is more illuminating than anything which has come out of Germany in many months, follows: "It has come to my knowledge through a letter addressed to the royal Prussian ministry of war that men on leave have spoken publicly of a revolution which is to break out after the war."

A soldier said to have come from the industrial region of Rhenish Prussia, declared on a train leaving for the front that in his home district men were going on leave taking weapons with them for the purpose of taking over the government after the war. The soldier said that he had seen a German or captured revolver as well as hand grenades, separated into two parts.

"I desire the clothing of men going on leave be searched and test cases be made of their departure. It will be possible to carry this out at the baths and re-dressing stations."

It is wished to impress on all superior officers that they must be on the alert for any signs of such objectionable talk or who hear of it through others, that they must deal with it at once and without hesitation. The German authorities and the director of military railways have been directed to take corresponding measures."

HAIG OPENS DRIVE ON 10 MILE FRONT

BRITISH FORCES LAUNCH NEW OFFENSIVE BETWEEN MOYONVILLE ON NORTH AND PUISIEUX AU MONT ON THE SOUTH OF FRONT.

200 PRISONERS TAKEN

Many German Field Guns Also Captured—Three Towns Entered—Tanks and Infantry Advance Through Heavy Fire.

With the British Army in France, Aug. 21.—Field Marshal Haig this morning launched an offensive on a front of about 10,000 yards. The high contour between Aindref and Moyonville is the northern zone of attack and Puisseux Au Mont the southern landmark of the front. The enemy here lately has been withdrawing in order to increase the depth of his defenses.

Launch Attack
London.—An attack on a wide front north of the Ancre river was launched by the British forces this morning, says the official statement from Field Marshal Haig today. Satisfactory progress is being made, the statement says, and the British troops have taken three towns back strong German attacks against the new British position south and north of the Scarpe.

London Report
London, Aug. 21.—The British attack this morning was launched from Moyonville and Beaumont Sir Ancre, a distance of about eight and one-half miles. It is reported that the British have advanced from two to three miles along this front.

The attack of the British this morning was made without artillery preparation. It was completely successful. The attack was made by the British third army under General Byng.

After capturing Achiet-le-Petit, the British troops advanced another mile and a half to the east and reached Achiet-le-Grand.

British forces have captured Courcelles, Achiet-le-Petit and have reached Moyonville and Beaumont. The British drive which began this morning north of the Ancre river according to advices from the front.

Three Towns Taken
In the first hour of the offensive begun this morning by Field Marshal Haig, the British troops captured three towns of Aindref, Beaumont and Moyonville.

The British attacked on a front of ten miles between Arras and Albert. The attack extended to the Ancre river to Beaumont to just north of Moyonville.

Some German field guns and 200 prisoners have been taken in the British drive at an early hour.

Attack a Surprise

All the German outposts along the important Dronoutre ridge between Koudouk and the Locust Hospice have been attacked by the British. The British attack was a surprise. The British forces have captured Courcelles and Achiet-le-Petit also were captured in the British drive. Although prisoners said the Germans had been expecting an attack for a week, it was a tactical surprise.

Tanks and infantry advanced through the heaviest fire in the grey morning light. After a brief "crash" bombardment the British troops were upon the enemy almost before he knew it.

Tanks Help
A great concourse of tanks manoeuvred into position as quickly as possible.

The first advance of the British was made at 5:05 this morning, after a brief "crash" bombardment, the retaliation was light at first, no doubt, owing to the difficulty of the terrain. The British troops in the haze and they got on rapidly.

Drive Strengthened
Later the assault, lengthening the front by about 5,000 yards, materialized according to plan. The general impression is that things are going satisfactorily for the British.

Governor Denies Madison Journal Statement That He Worked Against War

Plymouth, Wis., Aug. 21.—The feature of the Plymouth address of the governor was a prompt denial by him of an editorial statement in the Madison State Journal that he had worked against the declaration of war.

The governor read two telegrams which he had sent since his attention had been called to the State Journal editorial. The first was to the Madison Democrat and read as follows: "The Wisconsin State Journal makes a statement in its editorial today that our congressmen to vote against the declaration of war. The statement is a falsehood. I sent no such message."

In your editorial column today you make the statement that I wired to our congressmen to vote against the declaration of war. Your statement is false. I sent no such message and I expect you to give the correction proper publicity."

The governor declared that the State Journal editorial was on a par with most of the other statements which his opponents in this campaign were circulating and said he had only taken the trouble to deny it because it was so flagrant an untruth.

The governor declared it was source of pride to him that his opponents could find nothing in his administration to give them cause for complaint. He also spoke of the necessity of keeping the country in the war against the German menace.

HUN PEACE PROGRAM IS UNCHANGED

NO ALTERATION OF ENEMY PEACE PROGRAM MADE AT AUSTRO-GERMAN CONFERENCE LAST WEEK.

POLISH QUESTION UP

Future Of Poland To Be Decided At It Meets Best Interests Of Central Powers, Says Baron Burian.

Amsterdam, Aug. 21.—Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, declared himself completely satisfied with the result of the conference last week at German main headquarters.

"All questions of interest to Austria-Hungary or Germany were discussed," he said. "Every important question regarding war and peace have been talked over and no alteration was made in our 'peace program.'"

Polish Question Discussed

"Regarding the Polish question," he said, "our program remains unchanged. We maintained our principle that the wishes of the Polish people regarding their future must within limits essential to the interests of the central powers be considered. It was decided, therefore, to invite the Poles to participate in the Austro-German negotiation."

Must Strive for Peace

"I still uphold the point of view that if we are compelled to continue a war of defense we must still continue to make use of every means that could lead us to peace," Baron Burian declared. "Our nation must not participate in the continuation of our military operation. As long as the enemy desires to destroy us militarily we must defend ourselves. This, however, does not prevent us from striving for an honorable peace by arrangement."

BADGER THRESHERS LEAD IN WHEAT PLEDGES SIGNED

Madison, Aug. 21.—According to official information received today from the National Association of Wheat Growers, Wisconsin threshermen are leading all the other states in signing pledges cards agreeing to thresh according to the wheat saving rules of the Food Administration. Wisconsin has received 36 per cent more signed pledges cards than any other state.

"It is a pleasure to see the grain has been gathered by the binder," says Clarence Croft of Pernoitte. "I went over a 22 acre field with the machine and not 135 bushels of grain which would have otherwise been wasted. Of course it took a little longer time operating the threshing machine, but that cost small compared with the large saving in grain."

Deducting the pay given to the threshermen for the extra time taken by this operation, the farmer saved approximately $288.22. As a means of paying off a mortgage on the farm or buying Liberty bonds, strict adherence to the suggestions of the threshing committee cannot be too great.

Throughout the state threshermen are equipping their wagons with tight bottoms and testing their machines to see that they waste no grain. This will mean a large amount of wheat saved and bigger profits.

ARE BAILING GAS OUT OF A MINE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Calumet, Mich., Aug. 21.—Gas in being bailed from a mine of the Al-meeck Mining company's property in Keweenaw county, Michigan, as water is bailed from a well. A cable one mile long, a five-ton pump for hoisting copper ore, and a drove of rats are being used in the unusual experiment.

A fire at a 1,200-foot level a month ago caused much carbon dioxide gas to force a suspension after huns had failed to clear the shafts. The bailing idea was then hit upon and the shaft has been bailing up and down. The carbon dioxide gas, since, gradually causing the flood of gas to subside.

Gas tests made with mice and rats along the same lines are said to be along the trenches of the mine to detect the presence of gas, were successfully carried out. The quantity of gas now in the mine can be determined by the length of time the rats live after being taken below.

Mining men say that rats will be used hereafter in detecting gas in Michigan copper mines.

SUGGESTS PLANS FOR RECREATION IN CAMP

MISS MARY HINMAN OF CHICAGO ADDRESSES LARGE AUDIENCE AT LIBRARY ON WAR CAMP COMMUNITY SERVICE

NOT A FAD OF WOMEN

Recreation Being Given Men In Service In Direct Response To A Request By The Federal Government

An inspiring address on War Camp Community Service was given at the Library Hall last evening, by Miss Mary Hinman of Chicago, before a large audience. Miss Hinman is a trained leader in recreational work, and when a nation went to war she volunteered her services to the government. Since then she has been working under the three states of Minnesota, Illinois and Wisconsin. From her varied experiences in this work she had many new ideas to suggest, and practical plans to offer, and the whole was illustrated with interesting stories, taken from her varied experiences.

She prefaced her talk, by saying that this idea of taking care of the men in camps adjacent to communities was not a fad of women's clubs, but was done in direct response to a request made by the government of the United States. She said that the object of Home Hospitality was not to entertain or amuse, but to create, or refresh the men who came into the homes. She described the symbol of the work, which is that of the Roman camp of fortification, surrounded by the circle of hospitality. This is made in the army colors of red, white and blue, and in the way is recognizable any which which their own problems, and offer to the men seeking their human touch recreation which had the home touch, and gave to the men element lacking in camps.

"We must get the point of view of the man," she said, "and try to realize that they want something lively and that they go to it." She spoke of the band concert held on Sunday afternoon last week in Sparta, taken 2,000 soldiers were afterwards taken home to dinner, by the people of the surrounding neighborhood. "She believed," she said in plenty of acts, for the soldier boy, and in the virtues of the cook jar, as a help to mortality. "The men," she said, "are looking for the recent kind, and every man had rather have the home hospitality than the thought to make."

"This thing that the women of the nation are doing," she said, "is carrying into practice the teaching of the Christian religion, and is trying to take care of their sister's sons as their own."

"The men in camps have come to hate Sunday, as they hate it before," she said, "and it should be the task of the women to teach them to love the day, as a time for opportunity to make new friendships and renew those which the army camps had. In a brief outline of the way the commission came into being, during the Mexican trouble on the border, at that time in 1916, she said that she had been wrong in army camps. Mr. Redick, who had been president of the Associated Playgrounds work of America, was sent down to do what he could to remedy existing evils. He found that licensed vice and the regular liquor saloons were a part of every camp, and were regulated by the commanding officers in charge. He helped to remedy this by materially by substituting clean decent places where the men could sit in comfort, and write letters, home, had been their only refuge. The principle of substitution has been used since by Mr. Redick in all the later activities. Provided at camps."

When this country went into the war, an absolutely new commission of "War Camp Recreation" was created by Pres. Wilson and Sec. Baker. Mr. Redick was placed at the head of it.

"Two basic principles," she said, "underlie the workings of this commission. The first is that of helpful recreation, helps efficiency, and the second was to use existing agencies, as far as possible, in the organized work."

"This work," she explained, "was divided into three parts. First was within the camps, the Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus, and the Jewish Societies. The athletic places, also, had a prominent place, teaching the efficiency and morality were one, and keeping up the physical fitness of men in the camps. The second part was that of the place, as the men, that the singing soldier, comes fresher into camp at night, than his silent friend."

Then outside of camp for a zone of 60 miles there was supposed to be a cord of the war camp community service, which should keep up decent recreation for the visiting soldier during his hours of leave.

Lastly there was the law and order zone, under federal supervision, and with works of the medical corps, to rehabilitate diseased men. All of these agencies have their place in keeping up the morale of the man. It was suggested by the speaker that one man in fit condition for the firing line, she estimated the amount to be close to $10,000, and the efficiency of this man, she said, "might be permanently marred, by one mispent period of leave."

In the matter of dollars and cents, she thought it was worth while to look toward this matter.

In closing she gave a plan for the creation of an ideal of what America really stands for in these men before their trip across the seas, that they might be clothed in an invisible armor, which should protect them in the days of trial to come."

A conference was held by some dozen women, during the afternoon with Miss Hinman, when the subject was discussed by them in all its bearings. She frankly told them that the camp officials considered her the most dangerous woman in Janesville, and that more disease and drunkenness was brought on the soldiers in this city than in any other place, which they were making plans, and practical ways to get in touch with the situation were suggested. One thing which Miss Hinman strongly recommended was that cheap lodgings be provided, at a cost not to exceed 25 cents, where the men might sleep in comfort. It was often said in the discussion that men often sleep in the park, and that men of course, would be impossible when suits became cold.

Pavement dances, band concerts for Sunday, and picnics at the golf grounds, were all suggested by the ladies, as well as Saturday night suppers, if the thing could be managed. Miss Hinman is coming to the city later, when plans are materialized, for three.

YESTERDAY'S MARKETS.
Chicago, Aug. 20.—A top-heavy sheep and lamb market topped over, declines being 25¢ to 50¢ per cwt.

Omaha and Chicago have been out of relations for some time, but the two markets are coming together.

More beef is being consumed and it is admitted that only the ban on that commodity make a recent spectacular Omaha market possible.

Right money in the West will throw a lot of sheep into the market during the next three months, and further declines are probable.

Huon Material Plentiful.
A fall movement of light hogs will make bacon material more plentiful and narrow the spread, which has been wide, and to the expense of the big hogs. The pig crop is large and it is probable the old-time practice of reducing it to winter feeding proportions will be followed.

Feeders took thin-fleshed cattle to go on grass, but packers got nearly everything wearing beef. Putting corn into cattle at present prices is dangerous, and feeders are attempting to big hogs. The pig crop is large and it is probable the old-time practice of reducing it to winter feeding proportions will be followed.

The pig crop is large and it is probable the old-time practice of reducing it to winter feeding proportions will be followed.

Veals made a new record at $18, with big bunches at $17.50 @ 18.50. Choice veal price steady, $16.00 @ 17.50. Good to choice yearlings, 17.25 @ 18.50. Good to choice heavy steers, 17.00 @ 18.40. Pair to good steers, 12.25 @ 15.50. Heavy western grassers, 12.00 @ 15.50. Light grassers, 9.50 @ 12.50. Good to choice cows, 10.00 @ 14.25. Pair to good cows, 8.00 @ 9.75. Canners and cutters, 7.00 @ 12.50. Stockers and feeders, 8.00 @ 13.00. Good to choice calves, 17.00 @ 15.00.

Trade in Hogs Strong.
A crop of 24,000 hogs found several different markets. Early trade on good hogs was steady to strong, $20.10 being paid, but the practical top was $20, and that kind was not worth the money later about the 15¢ to 16¢ range. 100-lb. hogs was $19.50, but mixed stuff with a light end sold as high as $19.80. Armour bought his kind of packing soy late at $18.25 @ 18.40, sprinkling of pigs made $18 @ 18.50. Choice light and medium, $19.75 @ 20.70. Good to choice heavy, 17.25 @ 17.60. Good to choice mixed, 18.75 @ 19.50. Common to fair mixed, 18.25 @ 18.80. Straight heavy packers, 18.00 @ 18.50. Bulk of packing grades, 18.25 @ 18.50. Bulk of choice grades, 18.00 @ 19.00. Good to choice pigs, 17.50 @ 18.00. With 16,000 sheep and lambs here and 20,000 at Omaha, declines of 25¢ to 50¢ met no serious resistance. The best mixed lambs, with a severe sort, $15 taking a good class of Westerners late in the season. One lot of natives went to Praeger at $17.75, but $17.25 stopped nearly everything in the native line. Breeding stock was weak.

Good to choice lambs, $17.25 @ 18.35. Fair to good lambs, 18.00 @ 17.50. Common to fair lambs, 12.00 @ 13.25. Good to choice ewes, 12.00 @ 13.00. Cull sheep and ewes, 8.50 @ 10.50. Yearlings, 18.75 @ 19.00. Feedings lambs, 17.00 @ 17.50.

Mr. Hulse established one of the first printing offices in the city, and was one of the early electric railways owned a horse-car line between this city and Menasha.

Arrested as Slacker.
Grand Rapids—George Jankofsky, of the town of Sherry, was arrested last week and brought to Grand Rapids, charged with being a slacker. He was charged later, the sheriff being unable to determine just how old he is. According to the family belief, George was 21 shortly after according to school registers, but according to school records he will be 22 next September. He is to register on the 24th, with the men who have become of age since last June.

Hold Picnic.
Marquette—The new settlers' picnic, held in Peshtigo last week, will be held here in 1919. By the way, the picnic was a success, practically the only other town running in opposition. The 1918 picnic was a huge success, according to all in attendance.

Will Get Labor Bureau.
Rhinelander—Rhinelander is practically certain of getting a United States labor bureau. This was settled at a meeting of local manufacturers of industries, at which time a representative of the U. S. Department of labor, Mr. E. C. Cotsy, a representative of labor, met with the local manufacturers. A meeting has been called for August 22nd at which representatives of labor of the three counties will select a representative, and the two will select a man to be in charge of the local office.

Recent Appointment.
Oconto—Victor J. O'Callahan of Oconto has been appointed an appointment General Inspector of Examination Board for the United States. For some months he has been working in the Oconto office for the state, much the same capacity for the state. Mr. O'Callahan will report at once at Washington, where he will be connected with the office of Provost Marshal General Crowder. A military rank goes with the new position.

Sun Always Shining on America.
It is not only on the British empire that the sun never sets. It never sets on American soil. When it is 6 p. m. at Attu Island, Alaska; it is 5:56 a. m. the next day on the eastern coast of Maine.

Sure Way to Failure.
Our idea of a sure way to bring about a "dilemma failure" would be to marry a man because he was a "dreamy dreamer."

POLITICS AGAIN.

From one end of the state to the other aspiring and aspiring politicians are extolling their virtues and bewailing their wares in the hopes of enticing the voters to cast their ballots as they desire on Primary day.

In the midst of war activities politics holds sway and for the next two weeks will be dominant throughout the length and breadth of the land.

Janesville has heard address of Governor Philip Thomas, Mr. Wilcox who seeks the republican nomination, is to make an address in the Court House park on questions political. Mr. Wilcox is a forceful speaker, but he has the disadvantage of making his campaign a bitter personal one, which always loses the real force of any argument.

The contest for the assembly nomination in the first district is apparent or so one-sided that T. S. Nolan is certain of the nomination, and later his election will follow as a matter of course. Mr. Nolan will make a member of the assembly that his district can well be proud of and he will follow in office Lawrence C. Whitcomb, who has made a most enviable record.

County politics are waxing hot, although the only real contest is for the office of sheriff, and there is more than usual interest displayed in this year. It is hoped the best man will be chosen by the voters when the opportunity comes for making the choice for the office of sheriff these days is a most important one.

THE I. W. W. One hundred and six members of the Industrial Workers of the World were tried for alleged interference with war work, and found guilty. The testimony was worth reading. The American people are allowing dangerous forces to gather. We should stop and think what we can do to alleviate this social unrest.

Let us not allow the I. W. W. to grow unchecked. It will threaten our peaceful enterprise and discourage business enterprise.

Congress has been compelled to take refuge in the Rocky mountains.

The people who will complain most bitterly about the poor quality of the candidates to be voted for next November, will probably be the ones who were too tired to attend the primary election.

Those who say we can't put an army of 5,000,000 in the field will be the same ones who will kick hardest if the war drags on three or four years.

Anyone would jump at an eight per cent investment, but there are some who won't buy advertised bargains in summer goods that will cost 25 to 50 per cent more next summer.

The people who think that playgrounds are not necessary for the children, are frequently the same ones who will never permit them to hit a baseball on their land.

The speeding motorists who are anxious to squeeze down their running time five minutes more, are usually the same ones who spend about five weeks in the hospital.

The Germans only get one fifth as much nutrition as in peace time, when judging by their rotund size they probably had twice as much.

According to the German reports, when they advance they always drive us back, but when they retire, they do so voluntarily.

The politicians are looking around to see which of the gangs the offices belong to. Meanwhile the people continue subserviently to pay the salaries.

The people who have spent the summer sitting on shady piazzas have paid mighty high prices for vegetables.

The Russian people begin to show signs of waking up the morning after the night before.

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

GENERAL PAUL PAU. General Paul Mary Cesar Gerald Pau, head of a commission of twelve prominent Frenchmen, who are on their way to Australia by the way of the United States.

This is a propaganda mission designed to convince our own people and the Austrians of the sincerity of the ally in their determination to carry the war to a successful and crushing conclusion.

When the war broke out Gen. Pau was one of the military idols of the republic. He was among the oldest and best known of the French commanders, born in Montclair in 1848.

He was educated at the military school of St. Cyr, was a general of brigade in 1897, a general of division in 1903. When the war broke out he was made commander of the Sixteenth army corps, with headquarters at Montpellier and afterward of the Twentieth army corps, with headquarters at Nancy.

When Gen. Pau returned to Paris in April, 1915, he was the lion of the hour, the French capital greeting him with many evidences of high regard.

His name, declared one orator, "is emblazoned on that glorious arch which perpetuates the saviors of France."

During later years the veteran, white haired, mustached and imperious, has held subordinate but active commands, and is now chosen as the fitting representative of the French republic to the distant allies of the French republic.

AFTER THIS WAR

There may be wars when this is done.

There may be wrongs that men must right.

There may be battles to be won and principles for which to fight.

But when this flood of blood shall cease and chimes ring out from every spire.

The songs of liberty and peace, One man shall never set the fire.

No monarch, lustful wealth and power.

Shall ever set this world ablaze: No tyrant in his brain-crazed hour Shall sound the call to martial ways.

When the last shell of truth is hurled And ended are the grief and pain, One man shall never plunge the sword Into such bitterness again.

War shall not be a tyrant's whim, 'Twill vanish as the sport of kings. Beyond this far horizon dim, There dawns the day of better things.

There may be need for flaming guns, War's flag in future years may fly.

But one man shall not send the sons Of many to the fields to die.

WHERE THE ALLIES HAVE THE GERMANS ON THE RUN

Pictures from the front show graphically how the allies have the Germans completely on the run in the Soissons-Rheims salient. The upper picture a French official photo, shows a French patrol bringing in the day's bag of Hun prisoners, taken when a trench was captured. The prisoners are being taken to a prison base on the Marne. The picture at the lower left shows guns originally used by the Belgians. They were captured by the Germans in the invasion of Belgium and later turned against the allies. The French recently recaptured them. With them is a giant German periscope, arranged to be raised ninety feet in the air to survey the country. It is collapsible. The other picture shows members of a French patrol scouting through evacuated German trenches for nests of Hun machine gunners left to harass the advance of the allies.

YOUTHS AND OLD MEN FIGHT IN HUN RANKS

Priv. August H. Knopp Tells Of Capture Of Old Men Of 65 And Boys Of 14 In Recent Fighting

Old men 65 years old and young boys of 14 are being used by the Germans in the west front fighting, according to a letter received here from a Janesville soldier, who has taken part in the fighting. Private August H. Knopp, Company D, 28th Infantry, The letter tells of the capture of large numbers of these prisoners.

Private Knopp tells of conversing with German prisoners all of whom believed the Americans were British and could not understand the language of a large number of Americans fighting on French soil. The letter reads as follows:

Somewhere in France, July 27, 1918. How is the weather back home? Hope it is better than we are having here. At night it rains most of the night, and then in the day time we have good sunshine. I was in Paris Monday and Tuesday, that was the 22nd or 23rd time, and there is sure a lot of pretty scenery there. Just as soon as I get paid I will send you a German razor which I got off a dead officer. I had a lot of souvenirs, but did not care very much about carrying them around with me, for I have a big enough load the way things are without making the load bigger.

I am not with the company at the present time, but will be in a couple of weeks. I am having a little vacation such as soldiers sometimes have. The way things look I think the war will be over before many months. We captured plenty of Germans last week and they are still capturing more every day. We drove them back at least thirty miles in four days and caught them unprepared. And we hope to keep right after them until they admit they are whipped. We captured men that were all of 65 years old and boys that were only 14 and a little over. It sure is tough luck to see such young boys and old men in real action. The oldest old Kaiser will pay for all some day, sooner or later.

Where I am at now there are a lot of American Negroes. It is a joke to hear them all get together. They sure do have some times all right. All they do is unload the ships that come in from the states. I suppose the American papers are full of what we are doing over here. Well, they ought to be. The Dutchmen still think that we are British. They won't believe that we are all Americans. That's what the Kaiser tells them and they believe it, too. I had quite a talk with some of the German prisoners, and after I had talked with them a while they wanted to know how it was that I could talk such good German. I told them that I had schooling, and they wanted to know if they taught German there in the states. I told them that this was the way they would do away with the German language, and of course they did not like that at all. They wanted to know what became of the prisoners they would be taken to the states, but I told them they were mistaken, for we had plenty of work here. There are for them—and we have plenty of these prisoners.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

FROM THE PRIMER.

Egbert's Perseverance.

When Egbert was but a Young Lad he decided to try his Fortune in the Great City. Before he left Tankville, His Father called Egbert to him and said: "Egbert, always remember that Perseverance wins. Be faithful to the task and thine shall be a Great Reward."

"Thank you, father," said Egbert, and left for the Great City and the Great Adventure. Egbert was a Good Boy who didn't smoke, swear or knit. Egbert secured a position almost at once with Peabody & Co., and in only Five Years had worked up to Assistant Bookkeeper. His salary was Eighteen Dollars per week, just as Regular as Saturday rolled around.

Egbert was always First in the office in the Morning and the last to Leave at Night. He always helped Mr. Peabody with his overcoat and Eveningings he would go up and mow Mr. Peabody's lawn.

Other men, not so persevering as Egbert, came and went. Egbert, however, held this position twenty-two years and Always took care of Mrs. Peabody's coat and rubbers.

One red-letter day Mr. Peabody called Egbert into the Office and said: "Egbert, you have been with us twenty-seven years and you have been faithful. From now on you will be head bookkeeper and your salary will be Twenty Dollars every week."

"Oh, thank you, sir," exclaimed Egbert. "You are too good to me!"

Morru: Perseverance Wins.

We are being given ample proof of the theory that Dr. Garfield should give us our heatless days in August instead of January.

Lady Chesham. Lady Chesham, the daughter of the late John Layton Mills, of Tansor Court, is an ardent war worker in the hospitals while her husband is at the front. The couple were married during the second year of the war and have a small son two years old. Lord Chesham is serving in a hussar regiment with the signalling unit at the front and Lady Chesham is making and rolling bandages for the boys near the front line dressing stations.

News Notes from Movieland

Doesn't Gladys look thoughtful? She is thinking hard trying to remember how to receive wireless messages. And this is not a scene from her latest picture either. Miss Brockwell is studying to be a real honest-to-goodness wireless operator so that she will be able to help the government if Uncle Sam should decide that he needed women for that branch of work. Gladys spends all her spare time at the wireless apparatus.

If she does not appear in certain scenes that are being taken, one sure to find her off in one corner, taking notes and practicing for all she is worth. Even on these scorching hot days she keeps up her intensive study. Miss Brockwell is a Brooklyn girl 24 years old, and although she has been on the stage since she was a mere child she claims that "nothing has been harder, more fascinating or more worth while than my study of wireless telegraphy."

"I really enjoy every minute of it even if it is hard work and I only hope I shall have a chance to use it for the government," she said after one entire rest period spent in her "corner."

Magic in Movies. The Houdini serial which is being done at the Rolfe studios in Yonkers will be one of the first of its kind. Houdini, announcing last week that he has gone out of his way to create something out of the ordinary to thrill the audiences.

In collaboration with Arthur B. Reeve, the mystery writer, he has evolved the scientific villain. During the many years that Houdini has been engaged in the art of prestidigitation he has made a research of the many automata used by his constituents and predecessors.

Houdini's escapes from the various handcuffs and impediments and in an uninterrupted close-up on the part of the audience and any possibility of Houdini faking his acts.

It is reported that it looks so easy when Houdini does it that every member of the company wants to try it. In fact the story has it that since the keys to the handcuffs were not at the studio the taking of the picture had to be stopped in order to release some of the confident members of the company who had locked them.

In speaking of the reason for his entrance into the picture world, Houdini said:

"I believe it is one of the most important events in my long career. As time goes on I will eventually be deprived of my powers and I will have to perform the feats which have occasioned the wonder of my audience."

The Golden Eagle Levy's

An Extensive Exposition of Autumn Dresses

The new season is to be a notable one for the vogue for dresses and the diversity of the modes.

This present exposition—most of the fashions section begin given over to it tomorrow—will cover the style situation up to the latest of the new ideas.

Panels and fringes will be found to be conspicuous features and embroidery will be noted for the frequency with which it is used as well as its remarkable effectiveness.

The long waisted silhouette is favored, especially by makers of very exclusive gowns, although not to the exclusion of short waisted frocks, many of which are on view, with smart skirts either draped or straight, but full at the hips and narrow at the ankles.

Everyone one who would inform themselves as to the authentic fashions will find this exposition the exact occasion.

Love in a Hurry

She said nothing for a moment, narrowing her eyes and looking at him with the same amused tolerant expression. Then she spoke: "Well, Hall, it strikes me you must be pretty sure of me to do it in a two-step, like this. Why, usually they crawl all over the carpet."

Hall interrupted her: "Oh, don't Carolyn! Please don't!" Carolyn's face changed. "You don't actually mean it, honey?" she asked anxiously, putting a hand on his arm. "Mean it? Why, Carolyn, of course I mean it! It's no use, I can't make it theatrical. You have a sense of humor; so have I. Perhaps a girl ought to be entitled to a little fireworks on such an occasion—or even poetry—I'll try it if you insist, you know—but somehow, I can't take myself so seriously. She withdrew her hand frowning. "Oh, that doesn't mean that I don't take you seriously, Carolyn, or rather that I don't want to—I mean—confound it, I'm not contented enough to convince myself that I'm even a little bit worth your while."

"Well, then, try to convince me, why don't you?"

"That's what I'm trying to do, girl! Lord, Carolyn, there's no use in your not believing; you must believe! I want you something like me, really! I do!"

Doctor Prescribes Vinol

For Schoolboy To Create Strength After Sickness

Vineland, N. J.—"I am a schoolboy, 17 years of age, and typhoid fever left me weak and debilitated, so I had to stay out of school three months—my doctor prescribed Vinol. It has built up my strength and now I am feeling fine."

The school Vinol was so successful in this boy's case, is because it contains both cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates, the very elements needed to build up a weakened, run-down system, make rich, red blood and create strength. Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulitised coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulitised coconut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

I want you the way a little kid wants ice cream—the way a girl wants a new Easter hat—"

"Heavens, is it really as bad as that?" She turned away. "Oh, Hall, really, you know, you're too ridiculous!"

"Oh, I'm the clown with the dying baby, all right. I laugh and joke while my heart is breaking. Lord, I'm as merry as a man with a broken leg. I just plain want to marry you, Carolyn, that's all. Is that so hard to understand? Try and get it through your head, will you? I want to so bad that I'm making a fool of myself. Why the deuce don't you laugh?"

But Carolyn's smile had died. She only nodded and shook hands with him. "Say, Hall, you're all right!" she said, blushing slightly. "Heavens, I never thought you could do it like that and get away with it. Come over here and sit down. We'll talk it over." She led him to the couch. He followed her with docility, and sat down beside her.

"Now," she announced, "let's begin over again. I'm not sure I got you. I had no idea you were really in earnest, honest! If you have anything important to say to me, Hall Bonistelle, I'll give you just five minutes of my valuable time."

"Don't tease me any more, Carolyn," he implored. "Give me my answer!"

"Answer to what?" She stared at him wide-eyed.

"Oh, I suppose you are so accustomed to being proposed to that you forget about it the moment it's over; but really, Carolyn, I'm in earnest. I want you. This is the most important thing that has ever happened to me. If you don't accept me—I don't know what I'll do. It will ruin me. Carolyn, will you say yes?"

She shook her head. No, Hall, I won't.

"Carolyn, don't play with me, please. I won't take no for an answer, I tell you. I've got to have you. Don't you care for me at all, Carolyn?"

Carolyn looked him over again and said, "Oh, yes," with a drawl. "Why shouldn't I? You're good-looking—and clever—and—oh, all sorts of things. Yes, I like you all right."

"Oh, don't say me, Carolyn. I've got to know—immediately. Don't say no!"

"Trying to take me by storm, eh? No use, Hall, old chap!"

Hall jumped up scowling. "Then it's no?"

"See here, Hall, don't be silly. Let me get my breath, won't you? Give me a little time to decide. Really, you know, you are forcing it horribly."

"How much time do you want?"

"How much do I get?"

"Till—I can you make up your mind by tonight?"

"Oh, I say, you are in a hurry! If I can't, then I suppose my option expires?"

"Oh, don't take it that way—only—hang it, I just can't wait."

Carolyn rose and smoothed down her dress.

"At midnight, then—as the clock in the old bellry strikes the fatal hour?" She struck an attitude.

"Oh, no!—no!—no!—let's see—earlier than that—I can't possibly wait till midnight, you know. Some time in the evening. You're coming to my party, of course."

"I suppose I'll have to, to bring my answer. You seem to want me to do most of the work in this affair."

Hall looked at her reproachfully. "Oh, come now! You know I've got to be here—I've invited a lot of people."

"All right, then. I shall run all the way with my hair down, and jump into your lap, Hall, and whisper 'Yes'—or 'No'—or 'Yes!' She accented the speech with an absurd gesture of her forehead.

"I wish you'd take it a little more seriously, Carolyn, honestly I do. I tell you it's a mighty serious thing to me!" He shook his head thoughtfully.

"Why, it will change my whole life! It will develop me, make me a man! I have never done before! It will give me a thousand opportunities I've always wanted—"

Carolyn laid her hand on his arm. "Wait a minute, please!" she said. "I've always known I was an awfully nice girl and all that sort of thing, of course; but I didn't realize I was such a mighty influence in your life. Do you really think that if you marry me it's going to make all that difference to you?"

"Why, I'll be another person! We'll have a glorious time, Carolyn! We'll travel and we'll go—"

Again she interrupted him. "See here, Hall, I haven't any money; you know that, don't you?"

He was properly indignant. "By jove, you don't think I'm that kind of a man, do you? I don't care whether you have or not." He waxed properly heroic. "Good Lord, Carolyn, do you think I would marry for money?"

"Well, then, I don't see—"

He looked about the studio fatuously. "Oh, I'll—I'll work hard, you know. I'm sure I can earn enough. In fact I have splendid prospects, Carolyn, really splendid!"

She gave him another of her long curious glances through half-closed lids. "You certainly are attractive this morning, Hall. Too darned attractive! I almost believe I'll say yes, after all! But no, I must think it over. I don't want to be hypnotized, you know. Good-by, Hall, I'm going." For a scant moment she paused, hesitating, self-conscious, as she looked at him with an expression that was seldom seen on her face. Then she took his hand impulsively. "Oh, Hall, dear—I thought it was all a joke at first—just your fooling—that's why I was so horrid. But now—"

Then, as Hall attempted to draw her nearer she sprang away, once more proud and cynical. "Don't you be too sure of me, though! I may see the funny side of it again, tonight!"

"By jove, I don't see how I can wait till then," he replied bravely, encircling her waist. "Say, Carolyn—"

His lips were almost upon hers—not quite. She burst into laughter as she sprang away. "Oh, no, Hall, nothing like that! I've got a long way to go, my dear, before I'm ready for the bunny-hug! You go to work, and let me ponder. Fare-thee-well!" Then, without waiting for an answer, she floated out of the studio.

In the office she came face to face with Flo. Carolyn stopped and looked at her keenly.

"Why, Miss Fisher," she said, "you ought to get some fresh air, you know it? You need a change. You're so pale!" Her intent was kind, but so pale!

all times, when everything was askew. Rosamund Gale, the professional model, Rosamund the beautiful, Rosamund the elegant, the spoiled! Flo. He disliked her, from her hair to her heels, disliked her name, her manner, her reputation, and most of all her photographs. Hall Bonistelle used her often for his commercial pictures which he sold for advertisements, for magazine covers, for art supplements, "Spring"—Miss Gale in damp cheese-cloth with apple blossoms; "The Suffragette"—Miss Gale in tallorned suit, gesticulating; and so on—Flo. He always slapped the prints angrily with an irritated "Choo!" before she put them away. She would have been glad to slap Rosamund. Hall posed her, arranged draperies, touched her hair, moved her hands—all exquisite agony for Flo.

"Say, where's Hall?" Rosamund made a picture of herself in the doorway. Golden hair, highly colored, picturesque, even voluptuous, always in striking original costumes daintily "artistic," Rosamund, with all her dimples, her curls, her "lines," and her strange colors let Flo. He had the full disconcerting effect of her beauty. She had the air of one who is quite used to being stared at and admired.

Flo. He rose, her face set. "Mr. Bonistelle is busy, Miss Gale," she said, and walked toward the office, as if to brush the visitor back.

Rosamund, however, would recognize no mere mental; she swept into the studio as if she owned the place. "All right, I'll hang round a while till he's free. Say, Miss Fisher, fish me out a couple of those last poses, will you? I want to give one to a gentleman friend. Here—take this box out there and hang it up, while you're going, d'you mind?"

"Oh, certainly!" said Flo. He took the box and an apparent accident—dropped it. Rosamund made an angry gesture. "Oh, pardon me, I'm so careless," said Flo. Then carrying it carefully, so that a full foot of it dragged along the floor, she marched out of the studio, chin up.

Rosamund looked about for a cigarette, and found a box on a tabouret. "Oh, Miss Fisher!" she sang, "bring me a match, will you?" Then she yawned, and threw herself lazily on the couch. She began to whistle.

Dinner Stories

My agitated neighbor had just informed Mrs. Warren that her son was at the top of a telegraph pole in the vicinity. When the boy had been coaxed back to earth again, his mother exclaimed: "Little has another of his spells."

Doctor (half hour later): Why didn't you send for me sooner. You should not have waited till your husband was unconscious.

Wife: Well, as long as he had his senses he wouldn't let me send for you.

Said the conjurer in oil tones: Now, to help me with this trick I want the services of a boy—just any boy in the audience. Yes, you will do, my little son, come along now, you've never seen me before, have you?

Boy (innocently): No, father.

Corrigan, Sr. (admiring son in U. S. Na. uniform): But why do they make the pants so wide at the bottom, Danny?

Corrigan, Jr.: So they can be quickly rolled up, dad.

Corrigan, Sr. (warily): You're not in mine (y're goin' to fight wild yer fate! 'Tis yer jacket sleeves that out to be wide at th' bottom!

Myra's
 Afternoon

By AGNES BROGAN

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

As the hanging of the front door announced the departure of her husband, Myra turned flushed of cheek to her sister.

"There he goes," she said, "angry for the fourth time this week."

"But why," asked Helen, "do you delight in provoking him? You have been in the wrong upon each occasion."

Instead of resenting this accusation, the younger and married sister arose smiling. "Really, Nell," she replied, "I don't know what possesses me. I believe I'm suffering from stag-nation in this routine and welcome any diversion. Perhaps—" her voice trailed off musically. "It's my way of getting back at Jim, for taking me from a life of romance, into one of stupid responsibility."

"Myra!" her sister exclaimed, "that sounds as if you had found disappointment." She sighed, "and I hoped that marriage would quell your adventurous spirit."

The girl laughed. "Mercy knows:
 you had trouble with me in those same innocently adventurous days! Is that what you are trying to say, Nell? Well, I'll tell you what I am going to do.
 I am going to cast care to the winds, and have one free, perfectly joyous,
 irresponsible afternoon."

The quarrel this particular afternoon had begun when her husband, hastily leaving the luncheon table, returned to find her going out. He had launched to fish. He had promised Brownson, he said, to meet him at the island. And Myra, anticipating a tiresome afternoon in the home environment, immediately felt herself aggrieved. When hasty air and sunny skies were calling, why had not Jim instead desired her company? So Jim had stormily made his exit. Myra knew how to be provoking. Now, all in softest pink, with a pink parasol casting a glow over her pretty face, she entered the suburban park and looked about for a vacant bench.

The one she selected was near the water's edge, and Myra seated herself to plan out the rest of the afternoon. Should she call up one of her old-time friends and invite her to a lake trip with tea on the opposite beach?

Myra realized that a man was advancing, and was looking down upon her.

"I beg your pardon," he said as she raised her eyes. "I did not know that anyone was here."

"I am going presently," she answered. "Do not let me drive you away."

The man was handsome in his faultless white flannels, for a moment he allowed his gaze to dwell upon the girl in admiration, then with a brief
 "Thank you," he dropped down on the rosy bench at her side.

Myra, continuing her study of the waters, dropped the pink parasol a little lower as a screen. The man remained immovable for a lengthy period, she was constrained to peep under the parasol's edge to see if he had fallen asleep, and in the act of peeping Myra's eyes met his steadfastly.

"Why not put back the parasol," he suggested easily, "and be a bit friendly?"

Myra hesitated, then impulsively obeyed. "I told you a story about not expecting to find anyone here," he confessed, "I saw you come and deliberately followed."

The girl raised her eyebrows. "You are in the habit of following people that way?" she questioned.

The man shook his head decidedly.
 "Pardon me if I bore you," he said,
 "it was your pink dress and pink parasol which drew me, like a magnet.
 Years ago I had a sweetheart who used to wear just that delicate shade, you reminded me forcibly."

"Indeed!" Myra murmured, "and you lost her?"

The man's eyes grew grave. "Yes," he answered slowly, "I lost her."

Myra broke in at last upon his reminiscent silence. "Was she pretty, this sweetheart?" she asked.

The man smiled. "Not as pretty as you are," he said boldly.

Myra arose with a nervous laugh.
 "After that," she said, "I must go."

"See here," he entreated, "I'm lonely. For the sake of a memory, won't you let me row you down the lake? You could make me very happy if you would stop for tea on the other side, returning in the moonlight. Unless they are expecting you at home?"

Eagerly he awaited her answer.

"No," said Myra, "I told my sister that I would not be there." She closed the pink parasol with a snap of decision and followed him down to the shore, and placed her hand in his as

FOOTBALL STAR PROMOTED TO CAPTAIN

(By Associated Press.)
Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 21.—Merton Dunnigan of Minneapolis, former guard of the University of Minnesota football eleven, has been promoted to a captaincy, according to information received here from Madison. Dunnigan played on the 1914 and 1915 eleven.

Another football star—but not a Minnesota boy—is working his way to the top. He is Lieut. Laureston Gray, stationed at the university draft detachment camp.

Perhaps football enthusiasts will remember him better as "Dolly" Gray, the leading halfback on the 1912 eleven of the University of Chicago. Gray's drives off tackle and his spunk around the ends are still remembered by Minnesota students.

VETERANS ARE HELPING CLEVELAND BALL TEAM

(By Associated Press.)
Cleveland, Aug. 21.—A veteran ball player, pitcher George McQuitt, and Bob Mescher, are making good in their efforts to help the Cleveland Americans nose out Boston in the pennant race.
McQuitt, who is 34 years old, started his professional career in 1904 with Paterson, N. J. In 1907 he was with Philadelphia for a short time, but was sent back to Providence for further seasoning. The next year he was back with the Philadelphia team and continued with that club until 1910. In 1911 he went to Cincinnati, but wound up the season with the Columbus American Association club, staying there until the middle of 1913, when he was traded to the Pittsburgh team, playing with them through the 1914 season. In 1915 and 1916 he was back with the Philadelphia Nationals. Last season he played with the Kansas City American Association club and was with Columbus until the American Association disbanded this year, coming then to Cleveland.
Mescher started his major league career with Cincinnati in 1908. Since then he had eight years service in the big leagues as a member of the Cincinnati, St. Louis and New York National teams, finally drifting to the minor leagues. Cleveland signed him several weeks ago as a pinch hitter and he has delivered almost every time called upon.

MORRIS MILLER

Yale, Harvard and Princeton have announced their football schedules, but they probably will fall into line at the proper time. Meanwhile schedules have been mapped out by other big institutions of learning, including Pennsylvania, Cornell, Princeton, West Point, Brown, Syracuse, Washington and Jefferson, Pittsburgh, Dartmouth, Colgate, Lafayette, Penn State, Tufts, Georgetown, Virginia, Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Western Reserve, Illinois, Minnesota, Michigan and Chicago. There is no reason to doubt that Columbia, Fordham, New York University, Rutgers, Amherst, Wesleyan and other eastern colleges will be represented on the gridiron this fall. The fact that the naval and military academies will have eleven games each should help football immeasurably. The season will open in various parts of the country on Sept. 25, and training will start about three weeks earlier.

A world series box score with the pitcher batting fourth will be an odd looking thing, but that is just what it will be if Babe Ruth does any pitching in the series.

Max Carey of the Pirates leads the major leagues in base running with 57 steals, and doubtless will remain at that end of the list until the campaign ends. Last year Carey stole 45 bases and excelled in the National league, but Ty Cobb carried off major league honors with 55, followed by Eddie Collins with 53, Roy Chapman with 52 and Bobby Roth with 51. So far in the American league George Sisler is the leading base stealer with 45, followed by Roth with 34. Chapman with 28 and Cobb with 27. Next to Carey in the National league is George Burns of the Giants with 32. Burns leads both circuits in scoring runs with 68, Cobb being second with 67.

Every time Bass, the Braves' utility outfielder, makes an error or strikes out Hub fans yell "Get the hook."

The statement has been officially promulgated that, because of wartime conditions, the national eligibility requirements to the national championship will not be rigidly observed. Edwin F. Torrey, Julian S. Myrick and C. Frederick Watson, Jr., who are the committee in charge of the championship, are inclined to apply these rules with an eye to the unusual conditions prevailing this season. The fact that some scheduled tournaments had to be cancelled thus decreasing the chance for players to enter sanctioned events, will be considered in passing on a player's record. Any one who has a reasonably good record, therefore, and belongs to a club which is affiliated with the United States Lawn Tennis association, is welcome.

"Speed and brains put Dempsey where he is," says a newspaper headline. We thought a few wallops to Fulton's face and stomach did the job.

Charlie Herzog, who, not so long ago, was an idol of New York fanboys, now receives little notice from Gotham bugs. When Herzog was a Giant the fans delighted in following closely every move he made on the field and never overlooked an opportunity to

TAKING THE HURDLES WITH BERLIN AS THE GOAL

U. S. marines hurdling obstacle in bayonet drill.

Hundreds of former high school and college athletes who made names for themselves in hurdle events never thought during their school careers that their training would ever be of value in war. But those of them who are learning to handle the bayonet in the army find it an advantage. Part of the bayonet drills given the U. S. Marines in the training camps consists of hurdling over low fences, mounds of dirt and other obstacles and driving their bayonets into dummy Germans as they land. The men must be able to take these hurdles and keep their bayonets in position to deal death when they land. The picture above was taken at a Marines' training camp in California.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GREAT ALLIED OFFENSIVE IN FRANCE

French artillery pits recaptured from Huns by French, German plane shot down by French, and captured German field piece.

These pictures were taken back of the advancing French forces doing their part in the great allied offensive. The upper picture shows French artillery pits taken by the Germans in their drive and now recaptured by the French while hurdling the Hun back. The German airplane shown above was shot down by the French in the Oise section. The crosses on it have replaced the iron cross design. The new crosses resemble, from a distance both the Red Cross insignia and the emblem of Switzerland. Germany has replied to Switzerland's complaint that the iron cross resembled the British circle with a bull's eye too much. The lower picture shows a captured German field piece which the French soldier would like to take home for a souvenir.

INK MADE FROM TOADSTOOLS

Manufacture of Writing Fluid From Common Variety of Fungus Is Proposed in France.

The utilization of a common variety of fungus for the manufacture of ink, now both costly and scarce, has been proposed in France. The ink-yielding fungus which is often found growing in clusters where decaying vegetable matter exists in rich, damp soil is sometimes called the "inkstand" of the "ink bottle" because of the fact that when it decays a black liquid is produced. Its cap is elongated and bell-shaped, white at first and covered with a shining powder, later turning to gray with small brown scales on its top.

A French scientific journal says that extensive experiments in the production of indelible ink from this fungus were once carried on by French botanists. The fungi are simply placed in a bottle or other container. After standing for a day or two they change to a black pulpy mass, which, on being filtered through cloth, yields a deep black or brownish ink, not unlike India ink. The addition of a small quantity of gum arabic and a little of the essence of cloves is said to improve it and preserve its fluidity.

The ink consists of a liquid in which are suspended the minute spores of the fungus. For this purpose it can be readily identified by means of a microscopic examination. As it is also indelible, it is particularly valuable for use in writing of wills and other documents which are sometimes subject to fraudulent alteration.—Pathfinder.

Where It's Really Cold.

Turn up your collar, thrust your hands to the bottom of your pockets and read about the "cold pole" of northern Siberia, where the natives speak patronizingly about Greenland's icy mountains and other such relatively balmy resorts. At the town of Verkhovansk, which would probably never have had any inhabitants if the late czar's government had not sent occasional batches of exiles thither, the thermometer has been known to drop to 90 degrees below zero, which is a "record" for the whole world. While the regions about the North and South poles of the earth are cold all the time, the Siberian "cold pole" gives its inhabitants a comfortable let-up in summer, when the thermometer frequently climbs up into the 80's above zero. During the brief summer season the life-giving rays of the sun, which remains above the horizon day and night for some time during the height of the season, exert an intensely stimulating influence upon the vegetation and the ground is covered with flowers.

Dread of Poverty.

A great deal of apparent poverty comes from dread of poverty. A man saves every cent and goes mind and soul hungry and, ten to one, he is starving somebody else at the same time, along with himself. He is really poor, for the time being, although he has a large bank account. Poverty will come every time as the result of the improper attitude toward money. Money is not a reality; it represents things that we consider for our good. But there is no poverty like that of the starved soul that shrinks and dries up into narrowness and compression. In getting the feeling of wealth, look about you. See all the wonders of nature; believe that wonders will happen and then get ready for them. After the day's work is done build air castles, and then go in and lay a strong foundation under one of them. Expect to develop into efficiency necessary for the bigger job. The key to this lies in your hands in doing the little things well.—Patrick Weston in the Nautilus.

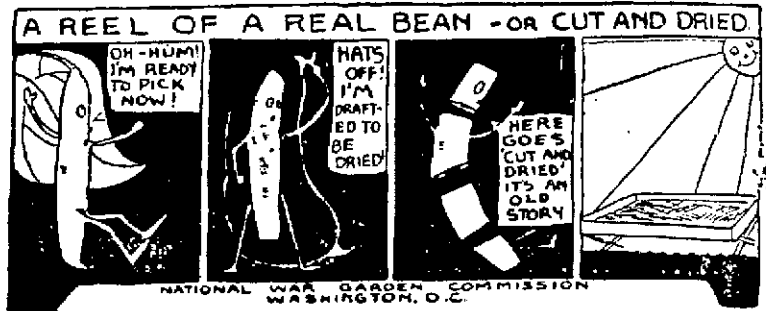

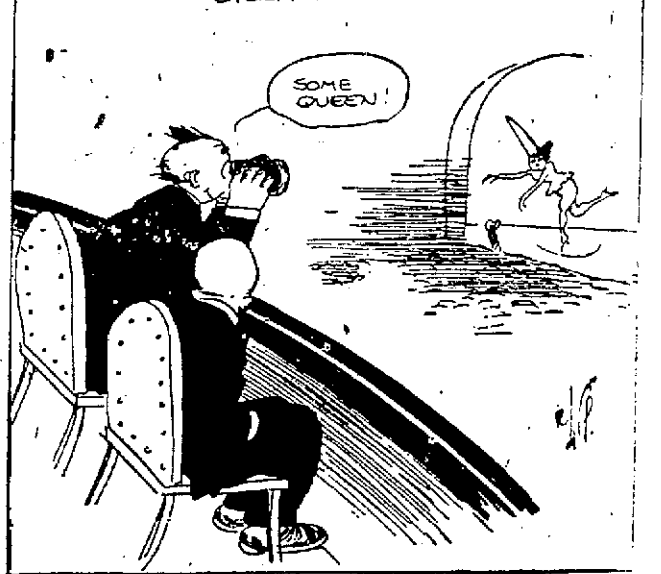

Will Curtail Service.
Milwaukee.—Suburban service on the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company's is to be curtailed beginning August 21st to enable the company to keep its contact with its men for two days off each month, officials say. Shortage of train men makes this action necessary on the part of the company. The lines first affected will be those suburban lines on which traffic is light.

The traction company will adopt a skip-stop system not later than September 30th and possibly by September 15th in accordance with the order of the United States Fuel administrator, issued last Saturday. The skip-stop system will be applied on all city and suburban lines and in Racine.

Soldiers Gassed.
Oconto.—Thirty-two Oconto soldiers were gassed in battle by the Germans on July 3rd, according to recent news received. All of them have now recovered and returned to active service. They were members of company 21, which fought through battle later with the 32nd division in the Marne-Soissons salient.

Brier is Really Heath.
Brier pipes are not made from the wild rose brier. The name is a corruption of the French word Bruyere (heath). The earliest brier pipes were introduced into England in 1859 and were made from the roots of the French white heath (Erica arborea).
